

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF HOWARD COUNTY
MEETING AGENDA ITEM

TITLE: Report on Participation and Performance in Advanced Placement Courses and Exams for 2007 DATE: November 29, 2007

OVERVIEW: The participation of Howard County Public School System (HCPSS) students in Advanced Placement (AP) courses and exams for 2007 continues to increase, and scores on the AP exams remain high. In 2007, there were 3466 students enrolled in AP courses representing 22 percent of high school students. Most of these students (2548) took one or more AP exams. With 5333 AP exams taken in 2007, 78 percent of the scores on these exams received a 3 or higher. More than half of the scores on the AP exams in 2007 were a 4 or higher, which is also a noteworthy accomplishment. The attached report provides a summary of trend participation and performance in AP courses and exams for 2007 by student group and school.

RECOMMENDATION/FUTURE DIRECTION:

The participation and performance by HCPSS students in AP courses and exams has grown steadily. These courses present one opportunity to encourage students to engage in rigorous challenges. Other opportunities to participate in enriching and rigorous experiences are also provided to students through the HCPSS curriculum, as well as through programs offered as internship experiences and summer school classes.

The 2007 AP results continue to reflect high achievement by HCPSS students. However, there is still work to be done to achieve the high standards in the Bridge to Excellence plan. Staff members will continue to examine the data, to study research, and to design improvement plans at the school and system level to continue to support the highest possible performance for every child.

Introduction

The participation of HCPSS students in Advanced Placement courses and exams has grown steadily since 2005. More students are participating in AP courses and taking more AP exams. As this participation is increasing, the performance of students continues to be strong with nearly 78 percent of the exams taken by HCPSS students receiving a score of 3 or above, which earns college credit in most universities.

Trend Performance

There has been steady growth in participation in AP courses since 2005 as presented in Table 1. The largest number of AP course participants ever for HCPSS was reported in 2007.

Table 1: Trend Participation in Advanced Placement Courses

More AP exams were taken in 2007 and most of the scores were a 3 or above. Table 2 provides a summary of trend AP exam participation for each student group. (Note: The American Indian student group is not included due to numbers less than 5 for all three years.)

*Fewer than 5 students in group.

Performance on the AP exams has improved or been maintained since 2005 for most student groups. The trend performance on AP exams is illustrated in Figures 1 and 2. (Note: The ELL student group is not included since there were fewer than 10 test takers in 2 of the 3 years.)

The percent of scores at a 3 or above was at least 57 percent for every student group. A score of 3 on an AP exam is often used by universities to award credit for a college level course in that subject. To consistently have more than half of all tests receiving this score is an impressive achievement by HCPSS students.

Performance by Schools

The participation of HCPSS students in AP courses and exams has increased steadily at most high schools since 2005 as presented in Table 3. While participation has increased, the schools have also been successful in raising or maintaining high achievement on the AP exams with scores at or above 3 ranging from 56 percent to 91 percent at our high schools in 2007.

Note: Marriotts Ridge High School did have students participate in AP testing; however, the school will not be included in the summary report until all four grades are included in the testing.

A summary of AP participation in courses and exams for every student group at each high school in 2007 are included as an attachment to this report. Additional reports on AP participation and performance can be found on INROADS, the new assessment data mart.

Summary and Future Direction

The participation of HCPSS students in Advanced Placement (AP) courses and exams for 2007 continues to increase, and scores on the AP exams remain high. Over three thousand students participated in AP courses in 2007, which means that 22 percent of our high school students and 47 percent of the senior class participated in these challenging courses. These courses present one opportunity to encourage students to engage in rigorous challenges. Other opportunities to participate in enriching and rigorous experiences are also incorporated into the HCPSS curriculum, as well as through programs offered as internship experiences and summer school classes. These opportunities will be described in an upcoming report to the Board of Education.

The Washington Post will present its annual report on AP performance in December. This report is created by Jay Mathews and includes a ranking of schools based on his Challenge Index. This Challenge Index does not consider participation in AP courses, but rather counts only the number of AP exams taken divided by the number of graduating seniors. In response to concerns raised by the limitations of this index, Mr. Mathews will also include information for an Equity and Excellence Index. This index reflects the percentage of the entire senior class who got at least a 3 on at least one AP exam some time during their high school career. While this index examines AP exam performance over the course of a high school career, it still does not consider a student's participation in AP courses. The 2007 Equity and Excellence indices reported by College Board for the HCPSS high schools are presented in Table 4.

Table 4: Equity and Excellence Index for Each High School

| School | Equity and Excellence Index 2007 |
|---------------|-------------------------------------|
| Atholton | 25.1% |
| Centennial | 46.8% |
| Glenelg | 28.5% |
| Hammond | 20.9% |
| Howard | 18.5% |
| Long Reach | 18.9% |
| Mt. Hebron | 35.8% |
| Oakland Mills | 23.0% |
| Reservoir | 25.4% |
| River Hill | 47.2% |
| Wilde Lake | 29.5% |

The HCPSS is committed to ensuring a challenging and rigorous program for every student. The 2007 AP results continue to reflect high achievement by HCPSS students, but there is still work to be done to achieve the high standards established in the Bridge to Excellence plan. Staff members will continue to examine the data, to study research, and to design improvement plans at the school and system level to continue to support the highest possible performance for every child.
